Mr. Navarro mentioned that the next step on the bargaining process is for the City Council to recognize a majority bargaining agent for the two civil service groups, the Fire Department and the Police Department. The process is done by a petition or some form of communication reflecting that a certain Union is going to be the majority bargaining agent. Mr. Navarro also mentioned that it can be controversial because on the Police side there is more than one Union that operates in the City of San Juan. At times the Unions make agreements among themselves. Mr. Navarro explained that there's no competing petition. There is a petition from the Police Union and one from the Clete based group. Mr. Navarro has been working with the Human Resource staff to make sure all the names on the petition are from current employees and sworn officers with validated signatures.
